The panel fit looks...interesting. Wonder how much more interesting it gets on bumpy roads and speed humps.

Surely, this has to be quite the most hideous 'restoration' of a Lagonda ever seen. The owner should be flogged publicly.

Well at least it didn't get scrapped, but what can you do with it?

I just cannot image how you would even start trying to restore this automobile to its former glory.

Beauty was indeed in the eye of the beholder.

What a shame.

That just said, I live in Essex and it would probably look right at home over here. :-)

What can I sat except "Ah bless." The chap describing it seems fair and he's not going to say his late father built a pile of poo is he!

This beast is back up for sale again:

Exterior Colour Green

Interior Colour Cream

Hideous inside, best to start again as a rolling chassis, everything is findable..

I would just shoot him, why waste good leather, you will need that in the restoration..

Price reduction now down to £9,995 for what is at best a rolling chassis.

It just needs full interior, engine and gearbox ...
