

Lagondaforum: Carb needles for 3 ltr

Carb needles for 3 ltr

Written by reevsy at Jul 01, 2008 10:13 pm

Do'es anybody happen to know the standard needle size on the 3 ltr H6 Carbs as I'm having my car tuned and it would help if I have a starting point? I know the needls are 100 but at what taper.

Best wishes

Peter

John Woodward has answered the above and needles are listed on burlen's site as LB2

Many thanks John.

Re: Carb needles for 3 ltr

Written by yted at Jul 03, 2008 3:42 am

Peter,

The identification on our needles is SV. (LB 290/1 motors.)

I don't know what Su parts are like to source in the UK, however we have an exellent fellow in Sydney, Bill Blessington of Midel Pty Ltd, with extensive stocks of new parts.

www.sumidel.com

Regards,

Mark

Re: Carb needles for 3 ltr

Written by reevsy at Jul 03, 2008 10:28 am

Hi Mark. Many thanks for that I was trying to tease out of those that know if there is an alternative set of needles to make the carb richer or if needed poorer but after off line discussions it would seem the needle you suggested is the correct one for these carb and to have the carb rich or poor is set within the tuning procedure. Yes we have a company here in the UK for SU bits for you information I have enclosed a link to the site with drawings of the carbs and parts in question.

<http://www.sucarb.co.uk/partList.aspx?carID=9107>