

Lagondaforum: LG45 rear seat

LG45 rear seat

Written by DavidLG45 at Apr 01, 2009 1:20 pm

Does anyone have any photos of the underside of the rear seat squab, frame etc of a LG45 as I suspect mine is not original. LG6/V12 may be similar?

Thanks

David Eldred

---

Re: LG45 rear seat

Written by Peter S30 at Apr 25, 2009 7:45 pm

Dear David,

finally I removed the rear seat backrest and underside. I assume mine is not original either. The underside of the rear seat is covered with black cloth, so you can't see in but at one corner it was a bit loose and I could find foam rubber cushions inside. The rear seat backrest is shown in the other photo, it has rubber foam inside too (no springs in both).

When I had the seat away I checked the filling of the shock absorbers, one was quite low, so it was worth taking the photos

Peter

---

Attachments:

DSC\_2254.JPG (filesize: 48.08 KB)

DSC\_2255.jpg (filesize: 70.68 KB)

DSC\_2258.jpg (filesize: 37.24 KB)

---

Re: LG45 rear seat

Written by DavidLG45 at Apr 28, 2009 12:55 pm

Peter,

Many thanks for taking the pictures.

David

---

Re: LG45 rear seat

Written by Mark at Apr 11, 2016 8:06 pm

Last year I had to replace the rear seat plywood back on my LG45 de Ville. The seat is original but the back had suffered badly from woodworm!

I can confirm that it also had a foam rubber interior. I believe it is called Sorbo rubber and I guess Lagonda were 'early adopters'

Regards

Mark

---

Re: LG45 rear seat

Written by h14 at Apr 12, 2016 2:04 pm

My V12 certainly has rubber in the front seat squabs; and very comfortable they are too. Pretty certain that is how they left the factory.