

Lagondaforum: 3.0 litre saloon 1933 for sale in Holland

3.0 litre saloon 1933 for sale in Holland

Written by SRD at Jul 13, 2012 5:21 pm

Gert van Logtenstein has this car for sale, how do the pre-war folks rate this car to buy.

He claims it has a nut and bolt restoration, he is looking for 60k pounds complete ?

Says it has

"new (replacement) engine ?

new gears in gearbox

new wheels and hubs

most off ashframe new complete new iron coach

new radiator"

<http://www.carandclassic.co.uk/car/C316281>

Is this car known and how does it compare to a 4.5 litre LG45 saloon, pricewise they have a similar market value.

Simon

---

Re: 3.0 litre saloon 1933 for sale in Holland

Written by h14 at Jul 14, 2012 10:09 am

This vandal is proposing to sell the body separately?

---

Re: 3.0 litre saloon 1933 for sale in Holland

Written by SRD at Jul 15, 2012 7:40 am

The seller is proposing to sell the car complete or without engine/gearbox.

I think it is over-priced and am trying to get some idea of market price for a good restored 3.0 litre saloon.

---

Re: 3.0 litre saloon 1933 for sale in Holland

Written by TVJL at Jul 15, 2012 12:46 pm

I've sent him a message, Simon, but I'm still not sure what's going on. Why would he (or anyone) split up a great and perfectly viable car? It makes no commercial (or other) sense to me - not to mention, as h14 suggests, the vandalism involved in such an exercise.

---

Re: 3.0 litre saloon 1933 for sale in Holland

Written by Colin M34 at Jul 15, 2012 2:13 pm

I knew this car before it was bought and restored by the present owner. It is a basically, correct, sound car and was a big restoration project.

I know a number of very experienced people who who have looked to buy the car and I would be willing to translate some of the "Dutch English" descriptions of the restoration into a more idiosyncratic native English interpretation. I certainly hope Gert sells it as a complete entity, it would be a great waste of his huge efforts to split it up. I suggest anyone seriously interested gives me a call, my contact details are available via the Club.

I like 3 Litre saloons and this one has style. Especially if you have kids or feel the cold.

Colin M34

---

Lagondaforum: 3.0 litre saloon 1933 for sale in Holland

Re: 3.0 litre saloon 1933 for sale in Holland

Written by TVJL at Jul 16, 2012 10:10 am

Chaps, Gert has confirmed to me that he is simply offering the body for sale separately because he wants to sell his car but no one is interested in it as a saloon. So - he reasons - he will rebuild the car as a tourer and make his car much more marketable. It is a sad - but (historically) familiar - story, as all will understand.

---

Re: 3.0 litre saloon 1933 for sale in Holland

Written by Julian at Jul 16, 2012 2:02 pm

What does he ask for the complete car?

Julian

---

Re: 3.0 litre saloon 1933 for sale in Holland

Written by SRD at Jul 16, 2012 2:43 pm

He is asking 60,000 pounds for the complete car.

That is the reason why it is not selling...

---

Re: 3.0 litre saloon 1933 for sale in Holland

Written by Colin M34 at Jul 16, 2012 4:02 pm

Yep,

Saloons are always expensive to restore and then worth much much less when restored. Mind you the car was dirt cheap when it was for sale before Gert bought it, though even then was still a little too much for me at the time. I hope it finds the right owner.

Mind you, IMHO it's going to cost £30k to do a decent tourer body plus trim and it will then still only be a re-bodied saloon. To get top money as a tourer it will have to be detail-perfect and that is expensive!

Colin

---

Re: 3.0 litre saloon 1933 for sale in Holland

Written by gert at Sep 23, 2012 7:47 pm

sorry that ill upsad an lot off people but the reason is that ill restored the car years ago cost lots off time and money ill won on the dutch concours de elegance first price in saloon class but after standind there fore almost 5 years in mine garage because ill dond like driving in an saloon (sorry) ill think sell the car fore costprice to make someone happy but did not happen

so there was one on auction for sale estimade 30-35k pounds ill sell body seperate mayby someone restoring an saloon quick and cheap ready but even that did not happen ill restored several lagondas building myself an new body is easy fore me ,if not sold beginning next year ill will start too make an tourer out off it many thanks too colin too come up fore me (he nows me )

---