

Lagondaforum: LR129 for sale at AML Bonhams auction

Re: LR129 for sale at AML Bonhams auction

Written by David at May 20, 2013 5:28 pm

Seeing Tim's photos of the 3 litre reminds me that 129's boot lid was misaligned and some 3-4 mm proud of the rear tonneau, straight on the car as Tim's image above shows but too high at the leading edge

Re: LR129 for sale at AML Bonhams auction

Written by David at May 20, 2013 5:30 pm

It also has just occurred to me - are the studs on your new bumper Christain the same length as the old template, or have these bumpers had to be too-closely mounted because the studs are shorter?

Re: LR129 for sale at AML Bonhams auction

Written by SRD at May 20, 2013 5:32 pm

A Rapide which lives local to me, with a more generous gap (ca. 2 cm) between the body and front bumper, using more extensive shims.

I do agree with Christian, the bumper does not follow the line of the rear body.

But in the end does any of this matter, £147k, ummh, I could buy a few new toys with that...

Attachments:

a.jpg (filesize: 192.63 KB)

Re: LR129 for sale at AML Bonhams auction

Written by David at May 20, 2013 7:21 pm

Ah yes, I recognise that car (spoke with the owner on Saturday) and its front bumper spacing is similar to mine. BTW Christian how can you tell there's no rear window demister as the aperture for the fan inlet is clearly visible in the rear parcel shelf?

Re: LR129 for sale at AML Bonhams auction

Written by randall977 at May 20, 2013 9:24 pm

There are no vents on the parcel shelf so foot / bum warming only...

Re: LR129 for sale at AML Bonhams auction

Written by TVJL at May 21, 2013 5:41 pm

What round hole? There is a slot in the rear parcel shelf, from which hot air emanates.

Re: LR129 for sale at AML Bonhams auction

Written by randall977 at May 21, 2013 6:15 pm

Oh ok, so there are two vent slots either side of the speaker grill - I just can't see them in the photo. How's your car coming along Tim?
